ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

In one embodiment, a computer-implemented method comprises receiving a data cipher operation. The method also comprises processing the data cipher operation. The processing of the operation includes generating a number of portions of ciphertext from plaintext, wherein a load operation associated with the generating of at least one portion of the ciphertext executes prior to a store operation associated with the generating of a prior portion of the ciphertext.